GOP, Dem Chieftains Discuss U.S. Policies

CHICAGO (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler says the Geneva summit conference was a Communist success because of a "huckster approach to foreign policy" by the Eisenhower administration.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall countered in a debate last night that President Eisenhower and his Cabinet have brought America peace and prosperity.

The chairmen of the Republican and Democratic National Committees offered contrasting views of the present domestic and foreign problems and their effects on the 1956 elections to the annual meeting of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

"This whole huckster approach to foreign policy is damaging our world position," Butler asserted. "The Republicans were so eager to make Geneva look successful, that they glossed over most of the problems during the meeting at the summit this summer between President Eisenhower, Russia's Premier Bulganin, Britain's Prime Minister Eden and France's Premier Faure."

"LOOKING BACK, nearly everybody now agrees that all the peace publicity brought about a premature letdown among the Western Powers, with the result that the Russians have turned Geneva into a Communist success."

"As a result of Geneva, the American people and the people of the free world are not as militant today. We have not strengthened our position ideologically."

On taking office, Hall answered, President Eisenhower "recognized immediately that communism as a world menace" and took steps to face it.

He said the governments of Guatemala and Iran were friendly to the Soviets when Eisenhower was elected, but now those governments have been replaced by friends of the United States.

Korea, Hall said, seemed "almost an endless war."

"Dwight D. Eisenhower went to Korea. Soon after, the Korean war came to an end. I think that is a tremendous accomplishment. They (the American public) like this peace with prosperity."

'Robbery' Brings Red-Faced Mixup

So he forced the men to march ahead of him down the street.

Neighbors decided the policeman was the robber, so they telephoned for police.

Several patrol cars arrived. Everyone went to the police station. There the out-of-uniform officer identified himself. So did the bottle carriers. They worked for the company and were supposed to be carrying the bot-

Britons Sure Now Princess To Wed

Margaret, Capt. Townsend Spend Romantic Weekend Date In Forest

BINFIELD, England (AP)—Britons agreed today it's all set—Princess Margaret is going to marry RAF Group Capt. Peter Townsend, whether the news is official or not.

"THE PRINCESS Margaret has asked the press secretary to express the hope that the press and public will extend to her royal highness their customary courtesy and cooperation in respecting her privacy."

Two of London's big morning newspapers interpreted this statement as a conclusive sign the 25-year-old sister of Queen Elizabeth II plans to marry Townsend, 40-year-old divorced father of two children and a fighter pilot hero of the battle of Britain. Townsend, now British air attaché in Brussels, is home on leave.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail declared flatly in a front-page article: "Princess Margaret and Capt. Peter Townsend plan to marry. That is the deduction drawn from the Clarence House statement."

The liberal News Chronicle said that by her appeal, the Princess has put her forthcoming marriage to Townsend "beyond all reasonable doubt." It predicted that the "royal engagement will shortly be announced."

Even as Britons scanned their morning papers eagerly for the latest details of the royal love story, the Princess and Townsend breakfasted quietly here in an old country house 10 miles from Windsor Castle and about 25 miles west of London.

They met as darkness fell last night at Albenay Hall, a stately red brick mansion of Margaret's cousin, Mrs. John Lyett Wills.

The couple drove separately from London. For most Britons, it was a secret meeting. In fact, when he left the home of his London host, the marquis of Abergavenny, and headed west at the wheel of his snappy French car, Townsend was reported en route to see his widowed mother, Mrs. Gladys Townsend at her Somerset cottage.

The storm, however, lacked the punch of hurricanes that pounded the area in late summer and early fall. It was technically described as an "extra-tropical cyclone," a storm formed outside the tropics by conflicting warm and cold air bodies. A hurricane is generated by warm air in the tropics.

Townsend arrived at Binfield early in the afternoon. He went for a ride with Mrs. Wills while waiting for Margaret. Mrs. Wills, a niece of the Queen Mother, is the wife of a tobacco magnate.

Meanwhile, the Princess had slipped out of Clarence House by a little-used side entrance. She drove in her black Rolls-Royce, with the shades down, and arrived at Binfield about three hours after Townsend. With her was her lady in waiting, Iris Peake, who received Townsend's letters and passed them on to Margaret during the two years he has spent in Brussels.

Two were killed in auto accidents on rain-swept Connecticut highways.

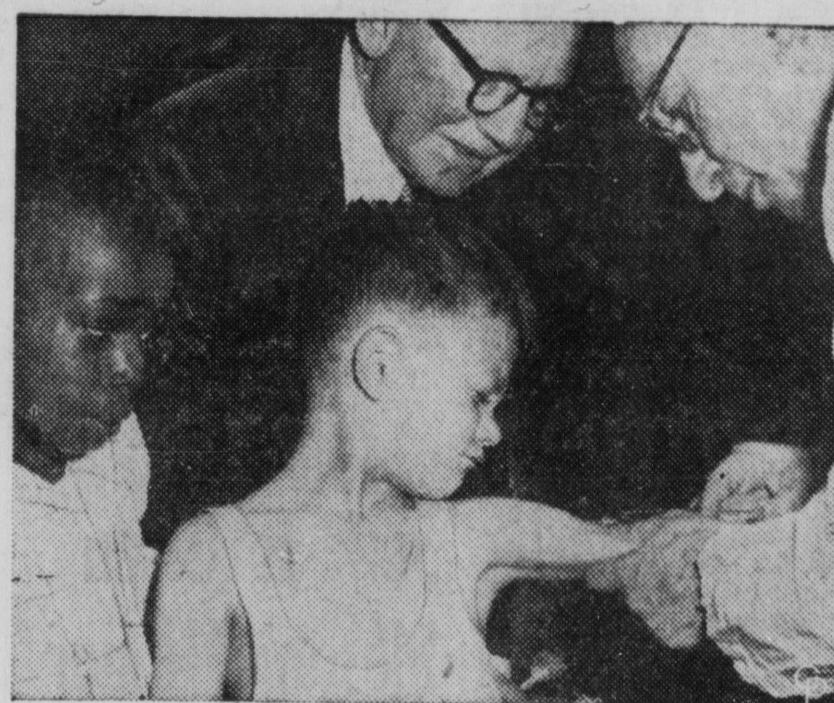

Five other deaths were reported in New York State: Two in auto accidents, two believed drowned and one electrocuted by a fallen power line.

Temperatures Due To Top Average

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Weather Bureau says its 30-day outlook for the period from mid-October to mid-November calls for temperatures to average above seasonal normals over the western half of the nation, the Upper Lakes, and the Northeast.

Below normal temperatures are predicted for the southeastern quarter of the country.

Precipitation is expected to exceed normal in the northeast and Pacific Northwest. In the remainder of the country subnormal amounts are predicted, except for near normal over the Great Lakes, southern Appalachians, and south Atlantic states.

JACOB KERN, 7, takes his polio vaccine shot like a champion but the youngster waiting his turn appears skeptical during the mass inoculation in New York City. Some 30,000 children lined up for their shots in the nation's greatest Operation Ouch. In Circleville, the second round of Salk shots is scheduled for Oct. 26. Children in Pickaway County schools are now receiving their second round inoculations. The work will be completed for the county schools next week.

Leaders Of 8 GOP States Calling For Aid To Farmer

Tigers Break 5-Year 'Jinx'

Circleville's Tigers finally broke a five-year football "jinx" held by Columbus St. Charles here Friday night by pounding out a 33 to 20 victory.

The Tigers spotted the Cardinals 14 points in the first period and then roared back with 20 points in the second period. It was the first defeat for St. Charles this year and the first time CHS has been able to beat them since 1950.

The storm struck on the eve of the first anniversary of hurricane Hazel and generally followed her path up through central Pennsylvania toward Canada. By early morning the Weather Bureau placed the storm center in northwest Pennsylvania, where its wind were diminished.

High tides still caused some flood damage in Providence, R. I., where a waterfront parking lot was inundated, and in Norwalk, Conn., where rising tides trapped 80 families, but posed no immediate threat to their lives.

Two were killed in auto accidents on rain-swept Connecticut highways.

Five other deaths were reported in New York State: Two in auto accidents, two believed drowned and one electrocuted by a fallen power line.

COLUMBUS (AP)—In a new bid to free convicted wife-slayer Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, attorneys have filed a 504-page brief with the Ohio Supreme Court.

The action came yesterday, a normal day in the prison life of the 31-year-old osteopath who is now working as an auto mechanic at Ohio Penitentiary. A jury found him guilty last Dec. 21 of the July 4, 1954, murder of his pregnant wife, Marilyn.

The thick volume was laden with photographs and sketches of Sheppard's suburban Bay Village home, reproductions of newspaper headlines, and other materials. With it was a 11-page appendix dealing with action taken last July 11 by the court of appeals.

In Cleveland, Saul S. Danaceau, assistant county prosecutor, said the bulk of the defense brief will delay an early reply by the state.

Sheppard's attorneys must convince the high court that his constitutional rights had been violated in order to obtain his release.

The law allows the state 15 days to file a reply, but the prosecution may ask for an additional 30 days.

Listed in the brief were 29 "assignments of error" alleged to have been committed in previous court proceedings.

The court of appeals was accused of basing its denial of an appeal that California criminologist Dr. Paul L. Kirk discovered new evidence, on evidence brought by the state and of ignoring evidence presented by the defense.

Double-Decker Plows Into Truck; College Students Injured

Two highway accidents involving passenger buses last night left a total of six dead and 46 injured.

Near Michigan City, Ind., a two-deck Greyhound bus plowed into a truck, killing six and injuring 21 others. And near Monroe, Mass., 25 persons, including 22 University of Massachusetts students, were injured when their bus hurtled through a barrier on a temporary bridge and plunged into a gully.

The bus driver, 13 members of the university's soccer team, and their coach were taken to Wing Memorial Hospital, Palmer, Mass. Five were treated at the scene.

In the Michigan City accident, the bus driver and six passengers remained in hospitals, some in critical condition.

MOST OF THE passengers on the bus, on an express run from Chicago to New York, were believed asleep at the time of the crash, about 12:40 a. m., police said.

Harry Williams, 43, the truck driver, said he flashed a flare as a warning to the oncoming bus on U. S. 20, a four-lane highway, about six miles east of Michigan City but the driver apparently did not see it.

Where To Set Prices Labeled As Big Item

Urge To Hike Tags Puts Question In Delicate Category

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The delicate question facing business today is where to set prices. And price news — whether to "fair trade," consumer reaction to price hikes, the prospects of another dose of inflation — is all over the lot this week.

The question is delicate because the urge to raise prices is strong just now with many a manufacturer—and because the power of the consumer to pick and choose in many a competitive market is unquestioned.

The conflict has had a spectacular outburst in the battle between the old-line merchants and the discount houses.

"Fair trade" conflicts pop up sharply this week. "Fair trade" is the practice, backed by laws in many states, of a manufacturer setting a fixed retail price for his products. Retailers are told they mustn't sell for less.

Two big electrical appliance manufacturers have been having trouble with this practice. Westinghouse has abandoned list prices on some of its electric housewares as unworkable. General Electric is stopping efforts to enforce its "fair trade" contracts in Indiana, awaiting a court ruling on the validity of the state's law. An adverse ruling in Michigan caused GE to drop the pricing practice there.

But Ronson Corp. of Newark, N.J., says it will step up efforts to enforce "fair trade" pricing of its products: Lighters and electric shavers.

The price question is to the foremost in other ways this week, too. The new auto models are coming out almost daily now. And most of them carry higher "suggested" price tags than last year. It's up to the dealer to decide how much of this to try to pass along to the motoring public.

In steel centers there's talk of higher prices on some steel products. The price went up at the time higher wages were granted last summer. But steel mills say that didn't cover all their increased costs. They note there was little signs of price resistance by their customers, most of whom are clamoring for earlier deliveries rather than dicker over price.

For many manufacturers there's little doubt that operating costs are rising. Many are paying higher wages.

What consumer resistance can do is being pointed out this week at the meeting in San Francisco of the National Coffee Assn. A survey, said to represent 11 million households, showed 23 per cent cut their coffee buying when the price soared.

Consumer resistance isn't in evidence yet. Retail sales volume tops last year by a nice figure. In New York on Columbus Day store sales were 5 per cent above the semi-holiday of a year ago. The lure, however, admittedly was promotion-priced goods.

A gloomy prediction that the country is in for "another dose of inflation" comes from Chicago, F. W. Hubbell, outgoing president of the American Life Convention and head of Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, tells the insurance men at their meeting:

Where To Set Prices Labeled As Big Item

Urge To Hike Tags Puts Question In Delicate Category

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The delicate question facing business today is where to set prices. And price news — whether to "fair trade," consumer reaction to price hikes, the prospects of another dose of inflation — is all over the lot this week.

The question is delicate because the urge to raise prices is strong just now with many a manufacturer—and because the power of the consumer to pick and choose in many a competitive market is unquestioned.

The conflict has had a spectacular outburst in the battle between the old-line merchants and the discount houses.

"Fair trade" conflicts pop up sharply this week. "Fair trade" is the practice, backed by laws in many states, of a manufacturer setting a fixed retail price for his products. Retailers are told they mustn't sell for less.

Two big electrical appliance manufacturers have been having trouble with this practice. Westinghouse has abandoned list prices on some of its electric housewares as unworkable. General Electric is stopping efforts to enforce its "fair trade" contracts in Indiana, awaiting a court ruling on the validity of the state's law. An adverse ruling in Michigan caused GE to drop the pricing practice there.

But Ronson Corp. of Newark, N.J., says it will step up efforts to enforce "fair trade" pricing of its products: Lighters and electric shavers.

The price question is to the foremost in other ways this week, too. The new auto models are coming out almost daily now. And most of them carry higher "suggested" price tags than last year. It's up to the dealer to decide how much of this to try to pass along to the motoring public.

In steel centers there's talk of higher prices on some steel products. The price went up at the time higher wages were granted last summer. But steel mills say that didn't cover all their increased costs. They note there was little signs of price resistance by their customers, most of whom are clamoring for earlier deliveries rather than dickering over price.

For many manufacturers there's little doubt that operating costs are rising. Many are paying higher wages.

What consumer resistance can do is being pointed out this week at the meeting in San Francisco of the National Coffee Assn. A survey said to represent 11 million households, showed 23 per cent cut their coffee buying when the price soared.

Consumer resistance isn't in evidence yet. Retail sales volume tops last year by a nice figure. In New York on Columbus Day store sales were 5 per cent above the semi-holiday of a year ago. The lure, however, admittedly was promotion-priced goods.

A gloomy prediction that the country is in for "another dose of inflation" comes from Chicago. F. W. Hubbel, outgoing president of the American Life Convention and head of Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, tells the insurance men at their meeting:

Gov. Frank J. Lausche told a statewide rally at Ohio State University that he was sure Ohio smokers willingly would pay an extra penny tax on cigarettes to help educate their children and care for the state mental patients.

He said Ohio's increase in population contributed to the twin problems of education and care of the mentally ill. He added that the state never could catch up with its school and hospital needs through present financing methods.

The bond issue proposal is in the form of an amendment to the state constitution. The money would be used for new schools, state hospitals and other buildings. Bonds would be retired by the penny a pack tax increase on cigarettes.

If approved, the bond issue would require the General Assembly to bank the sale.

Stalin's Son Revealed Shot In Nazi Camp

CAMP FRIENDLAND, Germany (AP)—Stalin's son Jacob was shot to death in a Nazi concentration camp in 1945 after he flung himself on an electrified barbed-wire fence, a returning German war prisoner said today.

The story was brought back by Maj. Walter Reuschle, prewar director of Radio Stuttgart. He said he interviewed Stalin's son also known as Jacob Dujashvili, in 1941 after the latter was captured on the eastern front.

He said he got the details from the commandant of Oranienburg concentration camp near Berlin, where Jacob was a prisoner.

"Stalin's son suddenly made a dash for the high-voltage fence and flung himself on it," Reuschle said he was told.

"When SS guards shouted at him to get away from the fence," he said, "the Russian refused. Then they shot him."

Reuschle said Stalin's son apparently decided to commit suicide when he heard that the Red Army was approaching Berlin, "because he was afraid the Russians would kill him for getting captured."

Reuschle arrived here last night with 39 other war prisoners from Russia.

The Royal Arch Masons of Ohio, at their annual convocation held in Cincinnati Friday, elected Harry E. Sark of Ashville as Grand Master of the First Veil.

Sark is a past presiding officer of the local Masonic Lodge, chapter, council and commandery of Knights Templar. He is a Knight of the York Cross of Honour, being a member of Ohio Priory No. 18.

This is the first time in more than 100 years that a Mason of Pickaway County has been so honored by the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Ohio.

Lausche disagreed with Senate Majority Leader C. Stanley Mecham (R-Athens) who told the crowd that "maybe only a few bonds will be needed."

Mecham said a probable surplus of about 50 million dollars for the state's two-year fiscal period might lessen the need for a big bond issue.

He based his surplus estimate on continued sales tax collections at the rate reported for the last three months. On that basis, he said, collections might hit $21 million against administration estimates of about $19 million.

He said the Legislature based its appropriations on anticipated collections of about 200 millions.

Other speakers included House Speaker Roger Cloud (R-Lagrange), Dr. John D. Porterfield, director of the state department of mental health and correction, Dr. Dwight Arnold, education professor at Kent State University and head of the Ohio Education Assn.

President Howard L. Bevis of Ohio State presided at the campus rally in the absence of Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, chairman of the statewide Citizens' Committee for the bond issue.

THE EVIDENCE OF THINGS NOT SEEN

How do you know the sun is shining when the world is steeped in shadow? How can you believe that day is at hand when night seems all around? • The fringe of gold on the darkest clouds, the rays of light streaming over the distant horizon, the shimmering paths of silver across the shadowy waters . . . these are the evidence of what we cannot see . . . the promise of dawning day. • Well did the Biblical writer describe faith as "the evidence of things not seen." For in man's darkest hour faith is his assurance that God is near . . . that God cares. • Religious faith is no panacea to drive away dark clouds. The somber clouds as well as the blue skies belong to life. But faith is man's pathway of promise, beckoning across the dark waters to the bright horizon. • We all need that pathway of promise. Adults need it to meet and overcome the many disturbances of life. Children need it to grow into courageous, moral men and women. • The Church continually teaches faith in God. And regular worship deepens faith. Attend the church of your choice . . . attend it regularly.

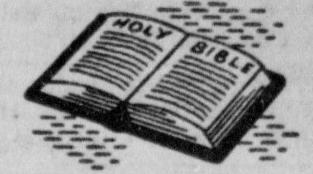

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

First Methodists To Hear Sermon On 'Great Hope'

"The Dynamic of a Great Hope" will be the sermon subject of the minister of First Methodist Church in the duplicate worship services at 8:15 and 10:45 Sunday morning.

The sermon will be based upon the words of the Apostle Paul in the eighth chapter of his letter to the Christians at Rome beginning with the 28th verse and through the rest of the chapter. The world's greatest power is to be found in this dynamic Christian hope.

The minister, The Rev. Charles D. Reed, announced postponement of "Laymen's Sunday" to Oct. 23, when the Ohio Methodist Conference Lay Leader Dwight Walter will be here to speak.

Anthems for the services will include "We're Marching to Zion," by Lowry, sung by the junior choir under the direction of Mrs. James Hodges in the early service, and "The Lord's Prayer" by Rickett, sung by the adult choir in the 10:45 service.

The organist, Mrs. Ervin Leist, has selected for her prelude, "Consider and Hear Me", by Pflueger, and for her Offertory, "Choral—Well Done is the Work of God", by Gastorius.

The congregation will be invited to join in singing, "Take Time to be Holy", by Longstaff, and "The Solid Rock", by Mote.

Regional Meeting Is Arranged For Christian Church

More than 1,000 delegates from Congregational Christian Churches in 19 Middle Western States, including Ohio, will meet in the First Congregational Church at Madison, Wis., October 18-20 for the denomination's 27th annual Mid-West regional meeting.

State delegations will consist of about equal numbers of ministers and laymen, according to the Rev. Dr. Frank L. Edwards, chairman of the meeting and superintendent of the Illinois Congregational Christian Conference. Dr. Edwards announced that stewardship, "the dedication by Christian men and women of their time, their talents and their money to the work of the Church," will be the theme of this year's gathering.

The delegates will concentrate on the study of home missions as a means of strengthening the Christian Church in the United States, according to Dr. Edwards.

Keynote speaker for the meeting will be Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglass, of New York City, executive vice-president of the Congregational Christian Board of Home Missions. The conference sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Edward F. Manthei, minister of the Western Springs, Ill., Congregational Church, on the subject, "Stewards of His Treasure."

First EUB To Note Men's Day Sunday; Guest To Speak

Special "Men's Day" services will be held in the First Evangelical United Brethren Church at 9:30 a. m. Sunday, with the men in charge. The Rev. Richard G. Humble, president of the Circleville Bible College, will be guest speaker for the occasion.

Elliott Hawkes will sing a baton solo. The men's chorus, directed by Montford Kirkwood Jr., will sing "Battle Hymn of The Republic". Carl B. Wilkins will offer the morning prayer, and the Rev. O. F. Gibbs, pastor, will give the Benediction.

Miss Lucile Kirkwood, organist, will play the following numbers: prelude, "Faith of Our Fathers" by R. C. Wilson; offertory, "Morning Prayer", by Tschaijkowsky; and postlude, "Onward, Christian Soldiers", by Sullivan.

Sunday school in the children's department will convene in the Service Center at 9:30 a. m. with Miss Gladys Noggle, director, in charge. Church school in the youth and adult departments will convene at 10:35 a. m. Junior church will be held in the Service Center at 10:30 a. m. under the direction of Mrs. Howard Conley.

"What are the saddest words ever spoken by Jesus?"

If you can answer this question correctly you will receive an award at the First Evangelical United Brethren Church Sunday morning, Nov. 20, when the Rev. O. F. Gibbs will deliver a special sermon on the subject, "The Saddest Words Ever Spoken by Jesus". According to the minister, these words are recorded in one of the four Gospels.

The First EUB Church is sponsoring a Bible reading campaign during the next four weeks. Each member of the church is asked to

RED STRATEGY

THE LEADERSHIP of the free world has a problem in strategy to solve. It is how to meet the Soviet-inspired campaign against "colonialism."

Colonialism has become an ugly word in Asia and Africa. Moscow rushed the majority in the General Assembly of the United Nations off its feet when the Algerian issue came to a vote. Algeria is not a colony, being territorially a part of France and holding free elections.

A few tribesmen, stirred up by reds, have joined with Moroccan rebels to make the present ruckus seem like a struggle for political independence. When the General Assembly turned up a surprise majority of one to debate the Algerian question, the French were bowled over.

Task of the leadership of the free world is to look the colonial issue squarely in the face and bring the peoples of Asia and Africa up to date on the facts of life. The Western powers did much to develop their colonial holdings in former years. In recent times the list of free colonies outnumbers by far those still retained by the West.

Russia is now the big colonial power. It operates by setting up a puppet government, calling it a people's republic and then bearing down with all the tricks of tyranny ever devised. What colony has Russia freed? None whatever.

If that fact is implanted in the minds of the peoples of the small nations of Africa, Asia and South America Russia in the future will be able to slip over few curved balls, in or out of the United Nations.

STEP FORWARD?

REPRESENTATIVES OF 64 nations gathered at Geneva to take part in the "atoms-for-peace" conference sponsored by the United Nations General Assembly. Businesses as well as governments participated in the conference.

Twenty-one U. S. firms displayed nuclear equipment while the British, with the largest representation of private firms, had more than 100 United Kingdom manufacturers taking part in their government-backed commercial exhibit.

One of the most popular exhibits was the research reactor installed by this country's Atomic Energy Commission. The Russian delegation found this exhibit particularly interesting, the members studying it so closely one dispatch reported, that they seemed to be memorizing it.

The conference represented the first concerted global effort to break down the barriers to nuclear fear and suspicion. In a sense it represented also an important first step toward building up mutual trust through the exchange of vital information.

One puzzling aspect is that the Russians seem to have contributed little or nothing to the exchange. According to news dispatches they were there to see and to memorize.

NINE CONVENTIONS AGO

POLITICAL pundits in and out of Washington are theorizing about the possibility of wide open presidential nominating conventions next August, and recalling the two memorable struggles of 1920.

At the 1920 Republican convention a deadlock developed between Gen. Leonard Wood and Gov. Frank Lowden of Illinois and continued until a break came on the eighth ballot and Sen. Warren G. Harding was nominated on the tenth.

At the Democratic convention William G. McAdoo and A. Mitchell Palmer continued neck-and-neck for 10 ballots, when Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio made a three-way race of it. Cox was nominated on the forty-third ballot.

As of today, Stevenson, Harriman and Kefauver are most frequently mentioned as Democratic possibilities. Vice President Nixon receives most mention as a Republican possibility if, as widely expected, the President does not run for a second term.

But the fields in both parties can expand amazingly in the next 10 months.

CUTTING THE TREES

IF THEY'RE cutting down the Christmas trees, can Christmas be far behind? More than two months. In the Canadian north woods harvesting of the annual Christmas tree crop starts many weeks before the arrival of the holiday season.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Khrushchev ordered the world to smile. He smiled. His associates smiled. Bulgarians smiled. Molotov smiled. Eisenhower smiled. The press and radio advised the human race that it was smiling time. It was like a chorus in a comic opera — all smiles.

But what were they smiling about? An end to international tensions, we were told, was the reason for the smiles. Everything was going to move better in the world. The Bear and the sheep would lie down together—a most uncomfortable position for both. The Cold War would be ended without a fighting war taking place at all.

So the smile was frozen into a smirk because events move forward and some of them are very unpleasant. For instance, that little episode of the arms deal with Egypt—a logical deal, for if Egypt cannot get arms in one place, the Egyptians will shop around. But that might bring a real war between Egypt and Israel. There is no telling how the United States would get involved in that, or even the United Nations.

And there is no telling how a little fighting war could grow into a general fighting war. The Russians apparently do not worry about that, despite the Geneva spirit. Maybe they are looking for a fighting war.

Perhaps had President Eisenhower been well, he might have invited Khrushchev to Washington to talk over a plan to arms-starve all the Middle Eastern countries, so that none of them could start little wars, but that is now impossible and therefore everything must go pro forma, through channels, and there is no telling where these unnecessary conferences will lead to. At any rate, there is little hope for too many smiles in the immediate future.

Geneva seems to have been a gay evening, a happy party, a moment for song and dance. And then came the morning after the night before and there was so little to remember, except that Khrushchev was very amusing and Bulganin very handsome and Gromyko bored and young-tired which is the worst kind of tiredness. And the Americans wondered why they had ever gone to that particular party because it looked like such a good party while it lasted and then it appeared to be such a bad party and no one knew why it ever happened at all.

At any rate, after a good time was had by all and the guests went home, the world moved in its course, the same as before. It was the same disturbed world. Only the old German Chancellor roared with true German laughter, belly-laughter, loud and noisy and full of guile. Adenauer probably got what he wanted, not all but more than he had ever expected. The old man is full of wisdom and he knew how to stand up against a fellow like Khrushchev who is new to all this business and acts like a novice.

Americans laugh at Khrushchev's getting drunk in Yugoslavia but the old German does not bother with trivialities; he goes to the heart of the matter. "Give me my Germans or I'll not talk about anything!" So he got the Germans who had been prisoners for a decade or more and then he got pneumonia or something and he is sick. But Khrushchev is not laughing. So France has been further weakened. It looks as though France has lost more of the war and the after-war than any other country. Something has gone out of the French nature—and that is that fanned ingredient called French logic.

For if France still owned a modicum of logic, it would know how to build a government that could stand and be secure long enough for France to be restored to greatness. But what does France do? It gets into internal and local quarrels, dangerous anywhere but mad for the French—sheer madness.

For France can be overwhelmed by her own traitorous Communists. And she is in peril from a nationalistic Germany and from her nationalistic Arabs. France is in all kinds of danger; yet the French are diverted from the main task which is to make France strong.

And so Geneva came and passed and we need to know how to make a peace of God, one not for an historic second but for the love of God and man.

and they're at it. The millions of trees sent to market each year cannot be cut in a few days, and it requires weeks to ship them to their destination and distribute them among dealers.

SYNOPSIS
Death of Roger Brindle, an extremely popular syndicate newspaper columnist, opens new chapters in the lives of those whom he wrote so well. He leaves his widow, Carol, and an entourage of persons whom he had befriended. Carol learns that Roger left no more than five thousand dollars. When she goes to see him, he reveals that Roger's first wife, Jane, has come to Stowville for the funeral. Albert Kibbee, one of those befriended by Roger, returns to see her. Bessie expresses the hope that she will be received of Joe Hattery and Ethel Hattery, another couple whom Roger had helped. Carol tells Shandy, Stow's descendant, that she is a widow and she has received a cryptic note regarding Roger's death.

CHAPTER FIVE

SHANDY was silent for a long time. The woman watched the fading scars become suddenly sharp on his cheeks. His jaw had a rigid look as though his teeth were clamped hard together. At length he said noncommittally, "We don't know what kind of person anyone might be." Their eyes met and then they looked away. "Carol, why don't you take a trip somewhere, go off for awhile?"

"No money," she said briefly. "My lawyer was just here. Roger left only five thousand dollars and I don't even know when I can touch that."

"If I can help—but you know that?"

"Yes, I know. I can't imagine what I would do without you, Shandy." She waited for a reply which did not come. She stirred uneasily. "I'm glad I never had to find out. And yet—why you go on living in this place when you could afford to live anywhere—"

Her eyes demanded an answer. Shandy looked around. "What's the matter with this?"

Her mouth twisted. Carol was accustomed to having her demands met immediately and Shandy was proving difficult. "You've let vines grow up around the windows. Your furniture is scuffed and it needs to be reupholstered. The whole cottage should be done over, repainted, refurnished."

He said indifferently, "I hadn't noticed. You are probably right."

"I'll redecorate it for you," she offered eagerly.

His dark eyes searched her face with alert speculation and then they were opaque again. "Let's worry about your problems, Carol, not about mine. We've got to solve your money difficulties first. How much?"

Carol leaned back in the big chair, one hand plucking at the worn slipcover. Shandy watched her through half-closed eyes. For the first time in her life she was driven to thinking. Always before she had evaded the unpleasant. He wondered how she would cope with it now. He was pleased to find that, in spite of the strength of her physical attraction for him, he could watch her with detachment.

"Later," she said. "But in a little place like this—if I took money from you now—the way the people in the bank talk—and someone would be bound to be—unkind."

The impassive face revealed none of his grim amusement.

"Anyhow," she went on, "a woman called me. A literary agent. She offered me ten thousand dollars to write some articles about Roger."

For a moment Shandy enjoyed the thought of Carol writing articles. "That would be a big job," he cautioned her.

"That or another," she said almost angrily. "I tell you there's nothing left. Roger squandered everything he had on all these worthless—" She became aware of the unpleasant sound of her own voice and automatically it became soft and lazy again. "Anyhow, they'll send a woman on the fifteenth to help me get it all down. She's a widow and very respectable, but I don't want a stranger prying around the house just now."

Shandy's eyes opened wide and closed quickly. "She might be company for you."

The yellow eyes were on his face now, fixed and unblinking like a cat's. "I was hoping you'd be that," she said plainly. "Mrs. Fleming would just be an outsider."

"Who?" Shandy's face stiffened although his voice did not lose its detachment.

"Mrs. Lois Fleming. You know, Shandy, I think I'll put her in Roger's cottage. She'll be out of the way there and it would be morbid to keep the place locked up. As soon as—when they took Roger away I locked the door. But if I leave it like that it will be haunted by his death. And, anyhow, it will have to be—put in order. After a stranger has lived there for awhile it will be easier to go back; the place will have different associations."

A long shudder ran down her body. She got to her feet, her eyes on the crumpled sheet of paper in his hand. "Are you sure it is all right?"

He did not look at her. "I'll handle it."

RED STRATEGY

THE LEADERSHIP of the free world has a problem in strategy to solve. It is how to meet the Soviet-inspired campaign against "colonialism."

Colonialism has become an ugly word in Asia and Africa. Moscow rushed the majority in the General Assembly of the United Nations off its feet when the Algerian issue came to a vote. Algeria is not a colony, being territorially a part of France and holding free elections.

A few tribesmen, stirred up by reds, have joined with Moroccan rebels to make the present ruckus seem like a struggle for political independence. When the General Assembly turned up a surprise majority of one to debate the Algerian question, the French were bowled over.

Task of the leadership of the free world is to look the colonial issue squarely in the face and bring the peoples of Asia and Africa up to date on the facts of life. The Western powers did much to develop their colonial holdings in former years. In recent times the list of free colonies outnumbers by far those still retained by the West.

Russia is now the big colonial power. It operates by setting up a puppet government, calling it a people's republic and then bearing down with all the tricks of tyranny ever devised. What colony has Russia freed? None whatever.

If that fact is implanted in the minds of the peoples of the small nations of Africa, Asia and South America Russia in the future will be able to slip over few curved balls, in or out of the United Nations.

STEP FORWARD?

REPRESENTATIVES OF 64 nations gathered at Geneva to take part in the "atoms-for-peace" conference sponsored by the United Nations General Assembly. Businesses as well as governments participated in the conference.

Twenty-one U. S. firms displayed nuclear equipment while the British, with the largest representation of private firms, had more than 100 United Kingdom manufacturers taking part in their government-backed commercial exhibit.

One of the most popular exhibits was the research reactor installed by this country's Atomic Energy Commission. The Russian delegation found this exhibit particularly interesting, the members studying it so closely one dispatch reported, that they seemed to be memorizing it.

The conference represented the first concerted global effort to break down the barriers to nuclear fear and suspicion. In a sense it represented also an important first step toward building up mutual trust through the exchange of vital information.

One puzzling aspect is that the Russians seem to have contributed little or nothing to the exchange. According to news dispatches they were there to see and to memorize.

NINE CONVENTIONS AGO

POLITICAL pundits in and out of Washington are theorizing about the possibility of wide open presidential nominating conventions next August, and recalling the two memorable struggles of 1920.

At the 1920 Republican convention a deadlock developed between Gen. Leonard Wood and Gov. Frank Lowden of Illinois and continued until a break came on the eighth ballot and Sen. Warren G. Harding was nominated on the tenth.

At the Democratic convention William G. McAdoo and A. Mitchell Palmer continued neck-and-neck for 10 ballots, when Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio made a three-way race of it. Cox was nominated on the forty-third ballot.

As of today, Stevenson, Harriman and Kefauver are most frequently mentioned as Democratic possibilities. Vice President Nixon receives most mention as a Republican possibility if, as widely expected, the President does not run for a second term.

But the fields in both parties can expand amazingly in the next 10 months.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Khrushchev ordered the world to smile. He smiled. His associates smiled. Bulgarians smiled. Molotov smiled. Eisenhower smiled. The press and radio advised the human race that it was smiling time. It was like a chorus in a comic opera — all smiles.

But what were they smiling about? An end to international tensions, we were told, was the reason for the smiles. Everything was going to move better in the world. The Bear and the sheep would lie down together—a most uncomfortable position for both. The Cold War would be ended without a fighting war taking place at all.

So the smile was frozen into a smirk because events move forward and some of them are very unpleasant. For instance, that little episode of the arms deal with Egypt—a logical deal, for if Egypt cannot get arms in one place, the Egyptians will shop around. But that might bring a real war between Egypt and Israel. There is no telling how the United States would get involved in that, or even the United Nations.

And there is no telling how a little fighting war could grow into a general fighting war. The Russians apparently do not worry about that, despite the Geneva spirit. One to debate the Algerian question, the French were bowled over.

Perhaps had President Eisenhower been well, he might have invited Khrushchev to Washington to talk over a plan to armchair all the Middle Eastern countries, so that none of them could start little wars, but that is now impossible and therefore everything must go pro forma, through channels, and there is no telling where these unnecessary conferences will lead to. At any rate, there is little hope for too many smiles in the immediate future.

Geneva seems to have been a gay evening, a happy party, a moment for song and dance. And then came the morning after the night before and there was so little to remember, except that Khrushchev was very amusing and Bulganin very handsome and Gromyko bored and young-tired which is the worst kind of tiredness. And the Americans wondered why they had ever gone to that particular party because it looked like such a good party while it lasted and then it appeared to be such a bad party and no one knew why it ever happened at all.

At any rate, after a good time was had by all and the guests went home, the world moved in its course, the same as before. It was the same disturbed world. Only the old German Chancellor roared with true German laughter, belly-laughter, loud and noisy and full of guile. Adenauer probably got what he wanted, not all but more than he had ever expected. The old man is full of wisdom and he knew how to stand up against a fellow like Khrushchev who is new to all this business and acts like a novice.

Americans laugh at Khrushchev's getting drunk in Yugoslavia but the old German does not bother with trivialities; he goes to the heart of the matter. "Give me my Germans or I'll not talk about anything!" So he got the Germans who had been prisoners for a decade or more and then he got pneumonia or something and he is sick. But Khrushchev is not laughing. So France has been further weakened. It looks as though France has lost more of the war and the after-war than any other country. Something has gone out of the French nature—and that is that famed ingredient called French logic.

For if France still owned a modicum of logic, it would know how to build a government that could stand and be secure long enough for France to be restored to greatness. But what does France do? It gets into internal and local quarrels, dangerous anywhere but mad for the French—sheer madness.

For France can be overwhelmed by her own traitorous Communists. And she is in peril from a nationalistic Germany and from her nationalistic Arabs. France is in all kinds of danger; yet the French are diverted from the main task which is to make France strong.

And so Geneva came and passed and we still need to know how to make a peace of God, one not for an historic second but for the love of God and man.

Death of Roger Brindle, an extreme Communist, opens a comic mystery. Those of whom he wrote so well. He leaves his young widow, Carol, and an entourage of persons whom he had befriended. Roger's widow, Mrs. Bessie, receives no more than five thousand dollars. When he learns from his wife, Bessie, that Roger's first wife, Jane, has come to Circleville for a visit, Roger, one of those befriended by Roger, refuses to see her. Bessie expresses the hope that Carol will get rid of Joe Hunter, and Bob Harkins, another couple whom Roger and helped, Carol tells Shandy Stowe, descendant of an old village family, that she has received a cryptic note regarding Roger's death.

"Who did it? Who—wondered about the way he died?"

"God knows."

"No one could—make any trouble, could they?"

As the color ebbed from his face the scars appeared again. "There's nothing to be afraid of. Doc Thomas is in love with you, or didn't you know?"

She smiled faintly. "I guessed." She rested her tawny head against him. "Shandy." Her voice was muffled against his chest. Her hands clutched at him. His arms hung at his sides. She stepped back.

For a moment she was a blurred figure in the doorway against the brilliant sun and then she walked across the wide lawn toward the gracious white house, a slim, black-robed woman moving with grace.

Shandy watched until the side door of the house closed behind her, his right hand deep in his pocket, clenched around the crumpled message. Then he too went outside, but not across the stretch of emerald green lawn. He plunged into the trees that climbed a hill behind his cottage. When he was tired of tramping, he sat on the stump of a tree and looked down through a clearing onto the white colonial house set in its deep lawn, with four small cottages scattered over the grounds. And beyond was the village with its slim church spire thrusting up among the trees.

Lois Fleming. The syllables beat remorselessly on Shandy's nerves, like the ticking of a noisy clock, the dripping water from a faucet. Lois Fleming.

How long was it since he had seen her, heard from her? Six years? Seven? The government had assigned him to help her find her husband who was reported missing and who had in his possession essential information. They had never got that information; instead, they had learned how well he had kept it and how he had died to protect it. Even then, with the barrier of the man's death between them, with a fiancee of his own awaiting him, he had known that what he felt for her he could feel for no other woman. Even then he had known what the future could be if he were to meet her under other circumstances. Now at last she was coming. He found a grim humor in the situation.

"Kismet," said Shandy Stowe.

DIET AND HEALTH

Dry Ice Can Be Harmful

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SINCE dry ice is becoming more widely used around the home for storing ice cream and frozen foods, to say nothing of preserving fish en route home from those Fall fishing trips, I think a few words of warning are in order.

There's another danger, too. Dry ice is a heavy gas. If you store or discard it in an unventilated area, it may collect and cause suffocation.

In Solid Form

Dry ice is pure carbon dioxide in a solid form. It is extremely cold, with a temperature of 109 degrees below zero.

It is so cold, in fact, that it can cause severe burns if it comes into contact with your skin.

But that isn't the only danger. As a gas, carbon dioxide has about 300 times the bulk it has as a solid. Therefore, there is a tremendous rate of expansion when it evaporates and returns to its gaseous form.

If the ice is confined to a container, its expansion quickly builds up a great pressure.

A tragic example of this occurs

Steeler '11 Gets Chance At Pro Glory

Pittsburgh Crew Rated Underdog In Game Against Philadelphia

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers get a chance to prove they're real contenders for the National Football League's Eastern Division title tonight in meeting the win-hungry Philadelphia Eagles.

Philadelphia, preseason favorite in the division, rules a 6½-point choice despite a mediocre 1-2 record.

The Eagles are on the outside looking in at a four-way tie for the division lead. Among the leaders are the surprising Steelers with a 2-1 record.

A victory tonight would give the Steelers first place at least until tomorrow's games are played.

Cleveland and Washington, two of the other teams tied for first, meet in the nation's capital. The Chicago Cardinals, the fourth member of the quartet, are out to add another defeat to the hapless New York Giants' string of three.

In the Western Division, the rampaging colts from Baltimore put their 3-0 record on the line against the Chicago Bears, who haven't won in three starts.

Unbeaten Los Angeles is at Green Bay, and San Francisco plays at Detroit, another three-time loser.

The Eagles need a victory to night if they are to stay in the running for the Eastern crown. They beat the Steelers 24-20 in an exhibition tilt here last month.

Coach Jim Trimmer is banking on his ace passers, Adrian Burk and Bobby Thomason, to power an aerial attack against the Steel-

Circleville Family Honored For Books On Bird Life In Ohio

Late Dr. Jones And Kin Write, Illustrate Work

Effort Terned 2nd Only To Audubon's Folios From England

A former Circleville resident, the late Dr. Howard Jones, and his family, who compiled and illustrated a work entitled "Illustrations of the Nests and Eggs of Birds of Ohio With Text", came in for special recognition at the recent annual tea of the Pickaway County Committee of the Ohioiana Library Association.

Gene Rea, bibliophile of a Columbus book store, was the guest speaker who discussed the work of the Jones' family. The tea was held in the home of Mrs. John W. Eshelman, of N. Pickaway St. and was attended by approximately 50 members and guests.

"Dr. Jones' Incredible Amateurs" was the topic of Rea's talk. He noted that the idea for the books was conceived by Miss Genevieve Jones, daughter of Dr. Nelson E. and Virginia Jones.

The set, consisting of two volumes, "is by far the finest thing of its kind produced in America," according to Rea. He added that the works are considered second only to the Audubon folios, which were published in England, and traced their "history" as follows:

Pinky Lee In Uphill Battle To Reach Peak Of Stardom

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A sensitive fellow is Pinky Lee.

He has long been the butt of other comedians' jokes. This has hurt him deeply. He longed for the time when he could have their respect.

"I'm not a suave comedian, like Herb Shriner or George Gobel or Jack Benny," he says. "I've got a speech impediment. I'm ugly. So I do things that make people laugh at me and then feel sorry for me. Little wistful things that might bring a tear to your eye."

For years he lingered on the fringe of top stardom, rising from burlesque to night clubs and movies and then television.

But he never really clicked big until NBC slotted him in an afternoon program for children. The Pinky Lee show took off like a shot and soon overpowered even Howdy Doody in the daytime ratings.

Then along came a little mouse to scare him.

Well, it wasn't just any little mouse, it was the mighty Mickey. Backed by 15 million dollars of sponsors' gold, the Mickey Mouse Club was scheduled on ABC opposite Pinky. People said the Walt Disney show meant curtains for the little comic.

Pinky began working even harder.

He already had a Herculean schedule—six half-hour shows a week. And he couldn't walk through his chores. He was knocked.

'Healer' Nabbed After Complaint

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A self-styled healer, police said, offered remedies for sickness, poverty, alcoholism, jealousy, evil influences, broken homes and love affairs.

Officers arrested David Genaro Troncoso, 32, and booked him on suspicion of malpractice of medicine recently. Literature listed Troncoso variously as a doctor of metaphysics, a psychologist, mentalist and doctor of divinity.

Police Lt. Frank Cunningham said a woman complained Troncoso threatened her when she told her she planned to go to police after his promise of "bringing her lover back from Mexico" failed to materialize.

Walter Rumsey Marvin, spoke briefly about the association. He stated that anyone interested in Ohio and the many projects of the association are invited to become members.

Dr. Marvin said that two major events are arranged for members: an annual meeting in the Fall, held to honor the "Authors of the Year", and a pilgrimage each Spring to an Ohio historic shrine. Members also receive an annual "author booklet".

"A membership in the association gives an opportunity for direct personal service to our state," Dr. Marvin remarked. "It is a token of appreciation for the rich heritage of Ohio. Moreover, it is a form of insurance to preserve Ohio's heritage, to interpret it and to pass it on to future generations."

THE PICKAWAY County committee includes the following members: Mrs. Eshelman, who is county chairman; Mrs. Howard N. Stevenson; Mrs. Enid Denham; Mrs. T. L. Huston; and Mrs. Tom Renick.

The 26th annual meeting of Ohioana will be held Oct. 22 in Columbus.

RECENTLY, Mrs. J. E. Groom, working through the county committee here, loaned a set of the books to the Ohioana Library in Columbus. The set is autographed by the late Dr. Jones and was a wedding gift to Mrs. Groom. (Miss Shulze, who helped with the early art work of the books, was an aunt of Mrs. Groom.)

Mrs. Eshelman presided at a short business meeting prior to Rea's interesting and informative talk. During this time, a note from Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper was read. (Cincinnatian Mrs. Cooper is the founder of Ohioana.)

Following Rea's talk, the executive director of Ohioana, Dr.

Mental Health Survey Slated

COLUMBUS (AP) — Sol Morton Isaac of Columbus has been named chairman of the Governor's Committee to help survey Ohio's mental health problems at the community level.

He will work with the American Psychiatric Assn., whose medical director, Dr. Daniel Blain, is conducting the survey.

Appointment of Isaac, vice president of the Family Service Assn. of America, was announced today following an organization meeting with Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

New Polio Case Total Dropping

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 18 per cent drop in new polio cases last week has been reported by the Public Health Service.

The 1,038 new cases in the week ended Oct. 8 compared with 1,752 in the corresponding 1954 week. In the week ended Oct. 1 there were 1,280 cases.

The service said this year there had been 24,055 cases through Oct. 8, of which 8,287 listed as paralytic. This compared with 30,044 in the 1954 period, including 10,822 paralytic.

Moonshine Still Found In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police and treasury agents raided a suspected policy racket hangout last night and discovered a 150-gallon still, 48 gallons of moonshine and 1,100 gallons of whisky-making mash.

Police described the place as one of the biggest bootleg operations unearthed here in recent years. Four persons were arrested in connection with the raid.

Circleville Family Honored For Books On Bird Life In Ohio

Late Dr. Jones And Kin Write, Illustrate Work

Effort Tamed 2nd Only To Audubon's Folios From England

A former Circleville resident, the late Dr. Howard Jones, and his family, who compiled and illustrated a work entitled "Illustrations of the Nests and Eggs of Birds of Ohio With Text", came in for special recognition at the recent annual tea of the Pickaway County Committee of the Ohioana Library Association.

Gene Rea, bibliophile of a Columbus book store, was the guest speaker who discussed the work of the Jones' family. The tea was held in the home of Mrs. John W. Eshelman, of N. Pickaway St. and was attended by approximately 50 members and guests.

"Dr. Jones' Incredible Adventures" was the topic of Rea's talk. He noted that the idea for the books was conceived by Miss Genevieve Jones, daughter of Dr. Nelson E. and Virginia Jones.

The set, consisting of two volumes, is by far the finest thing of its kind produced in America," according to Rea. He added that the works are considered second only to the Audubon folios, which were published in England, and traced their "history" as follows:

Pinky Lee In Uphill Battle To Reach Peak Of Stardom

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A sensitive fellow is Pinky Lee.

He has long been the butt of other comedians' jokes. This has hurt him deeply. He longed for the time when he could have their respect.

"I'm not a suave comedian, like Herb Shriner or George Gobel or Jack Benny," he says. "I've got a speech impediment. I'm ugly. So I do things that make people laugh at me and then feel sorry for me. Little wistful things that might bring a tear to your eye."

For years he lingered on the fringe of top stardom, rising from burlesque to night clubs and movies and then television.

But he never really clicked big until NBC slotted him in an afternoon program for children. The Pinky Lee show took off like a shot and soon overpowered even Howdy Doody in the daytime ratings.

Then along came a little mouse to scare him.

Well, it wasn't just any little mouse, it was the mighty Mickey.

Backed by 15 million dollars of sponsors' gold, the Mickey Mouse Club was scheduled on ABC opposite Pinky. People said the Walt Disney show meant curtains for the little comic.

Pinky began working even harder. He already had a Herculean schedule—six half-hour shows a week. And he couldn't walk through his chores. He was knocked out homes and love affairs.

Officers arrested David Genaro Troncoso, 32, and booked him on suspicion of malpractice of medicine recently. Literature listed Troncoso variously as a doctor of metaphysics, a psychologist, mentalist and doctor of divinity.

Police Lt. Frank Cunningham said a woman complained Troncoso threatened her when she told him she planned to go to police after his promise of "bringing her lover back from Mexico" failed to materialize.

In all, 90 sets of the books were finally produced. Of these, four sets were incomplete and 27 others were "broken" sets due to default on the part of subscribers.

The remaining 59 complete sets are now scattered in museums and libraries throughout the country, including the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C. and the British Museum.

(Rea noted that "Circleville and Pickaway County residents are fortunate in having a complete hand-colored set in the public library here".)

RECENTLY, Mrs. J. E. Groom, working through the county committee here, loaned a set of the books to the Ohioana Library in Columbus. The set is autographed by the late Dr. Jones and was a wedding gift to Mrs. Groom. (Miss Shulze, who helped with the early art work of the books, was an aunt of Mrs. Groom.)

Mrs. Eshelman presided at a short business meeting prior to Rea's interesting and informative talk. During this time, a note from Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper was read. (Cincinnati Mrs. Cooper is the founder of Ohioana.)

Following Rea's talk, the executive director of Ohioana, Dr.

Moonshine Still Found In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police and treasury agents raided a suspected policy racket hangout last night and discovered a 150-gallon still, 48 gallons of moonshine and 1,100 gallons of whisky-making mash.

Police described the place as one of the biggest bootleg operations unearthed here in recent years. Four persons were arrested in connection with the raid.

Another Newsprint Price Hike May Hurt Newspapers

NEW YORK (AP) — If newsprint prices are raised, it could result in the closing of some American newspapers and the impoverishment of others, Cranston Williams, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., said today.

Williams, in a statement on behalf of a national organization representing more than 800 daily newspapers in the United States and Canada, called upon publishers to protest to their suppliers any rise in the price of newsprint at this time.

Last week Sir Eric Bowater, chairman of the Bowater Paper Corp. Ltd., one of the world's greatest newsprint manufacturers, predicted a rise in the price of newsprint. Bowater said that cost of newsprint production had risen appreciably and "we can't continue to absorb these mounting costs."

He noted that the general price of newsprint had not been raised since the middle of 1952.

Williams said that the long-run prosperity of the newsprint manufacturers themselves is involved because their present unprecedented high earnings are tied intimately to the full capacity which prevails throughout the industry. He stated that any major reduction of newspaper advertising or circulation will result inevitably in reduced consumption, which could upset the whole newsprint economy.

1. Newsprint manufacturers enjoy unprecedent prosperity now at the current price of $126 a ton.

2. It is well known that American newspaper production costs in recent years have far outdistanced receipts from advertising and circulation.

3. In most areas the price of newspapers has reached the limit that can be obtained without serious losses of circulation.

4. Newspaper advertising rates in many areas may soon approach the point of diminishing returns for users of newspaper space.

5. Any additional cost of newspapers to their readers or advertisers will seriously threaten the stability of the American press which is in the front line of defense of America's basic freedoms.
